Bird Photography and Cats on the Agenda

Thursday, March 16

Doug Brown

Intro to Bird Photography

7:00 p.m., Adelante Community Room, 3800 Osuna Road NE

(Before the main presentation Conservation Committee member Bruce Dale will give a brief presentation on how homeowners can treat their windows to prevent collisions by birds.)

Come learn more about bird photography. In addition to providing tips on for getting the best bird photos in a variety of environmental settings, Doug will cover camera gear and basics.

Doug is a BBC Wildlife Photographer of the Year honoree whose work has been displayed at the British Natural History Museum, among others. His images can be found in printed and digital field guides, including the iBird app for smartphones.

Thursday, April 6

Peter Marra

Cats as Killers

6:30 p.m., UNM Continuing Education, 1634 University NE

Dr. Peter Marra, director of the Smithsonian Migratory Bird Center, will discuss the consequences of free-ranging cats, suggest solutions, and comment on the controversy around this issue.

Dr. Marra is not anti-cat (nor is Audubon). However, field research shows that cats kill billions of birds every year and are a major factor in the decline of many species. Yet the public is largely unaware of the magnitude of this problem—which must be addressed with management policies that protect wildlife and public health while managing cats responsibly.

The event will be open to the community. A book signing sponsored by Bookworks will follow the presentation.

Author and Presenter Peter Marra

Cat Wars the Topic

CNMAS member Tomas Radcliffe will lead discussions on Peter Marra's Cat Wars: The Devastating Consequences of a Cuddly Killer.

Sessions will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Erna Fergusson library, 3700 San Mateo NE, on March 6 and April 3.

Chapters 4-6 will be covered at the March meeting and chapters 7-9 on April 3.

Attendees are encouraged to bring a discussion question rooted in the chapters for that day.

For more information contact Tomas Radcliffe, tradcliffe@cnm.edu

Bookworks, 4022 Rio Grande NW, www.bkwrks.com, will sell Cat Wars at a 10% discount to those participating in the discussions.

Conservation and Public Policy Achievements

Story and photo by Judy Liddell

CNMAS has recently provided input about birds and habitat into a number of public agency planning processes.

Open Space Advisory Committee

CNMAS joined with neighbors to provide input on the Candelaria Farm Preserve and sent an action alert asking members to contact their City Councilperson in support of a resolution to resolve conflicting plans and goals for the area, which is adjacent to the Nature Center.

The resolution, which passed the council and was signed by the mayor, directs the City Open Space Division to convene a technical advisory council and to develop a new management plan.

The resolution “reaffirms that the (preserve) is to be managed as a nature study area and wildlife preserve.”

CNMAS will continue to provide input on the needs of birds and wildlife.

Cibola National Forest Council

CNMAS has been participating in the Cibola Shared Collaborative Coordinating Council for the Cibola National Forest, along with representatives from other interest groups, ranging from soil and water conservation districts, tribes, environmental groups and other users, for example off-road vehicle associations and rock hounds. The aim is to find common areas of interest that can be backed in the final management plan that will be presented for community review this summer.

Corrales Important Bird Area (IBA)

CNMAS attended a meeting January 27 with folks from Middle Rio Grande Conservancy District, representatives from Audubon New Mexico, and a representative from the Corrales Bosque Advisory Committee to discuss their plans for clearing in the Riverside Drain and upcoming USACE certification. The group will continue to engage with them.

Otero Important Bird Area (IBA)

The sign designating the area as an IBA had been missing. A new sign was obtained from New Mexico Audubon and has been installed.

New Mexico Avian Partners (NMAP)

CNMAS President Karen Herzenberg and Vice President Judy Liddell attended a day-long meeting sponsored by NMAP. The group had invited a wide range of land managers. The focus was on habitat management and species at risk, including:

- arid habitats (Bendire’s Thrasher)
- Piñón-Juniper (Pinyon Jay, Juniper Titmouse, Woodhouse’s Scrub-Jay)
- Ponderosa pine (Grace’s and Virginia’s Warblers, Flammulated Owl, Mexican Whip-Poor-Will, Lewis’s Woodpecker)
- grassland (Lesser Prairie-Chicken, Scaled Quail, Chestnut-collared Longspur)
- mixed-conifer (Mexican Spotted Owl, Red-faced Warbler)
- and riparian (Southwestern Willow Flycatcher, Western Yellow-billed Cuckoo).

Thursday, June 15: Save the Date

This will be the CNMAS annual meeting and potluck—watch for details on cnmas.newmexicoaudubon.org.

CNMA Spring 2017 Weekend Field Trips

Coyote del Malpais Golf Course

Saturday, April 29

Join Kim Score on a Saturday trip to Cibola County's newest hotspot, the Coyote del Malpais Golf Course. Located one hour west of Albuquerque in Grants, this beautiful golf course has 16 lakes, which attract numerous breeding birds and many migrating species. In addition to waterfowl, we are likely to find gulls, dowitchers, avocets, stilts, ibis, phalarope, and several species of sandpipers. Bring your spotting scopes and cameras! Participants will be walking over three miles round-trip at 6500 feet in elevation as we explore the golf course. Depending on level of interest we may also visit other nearby hotspots like Acomita Lake and the El Malpais National Conservation Area. Meet at 7:00 a.m. at the Shell gas station off I-40's exit 89. Please RSVP to Kim Score, firefinch@usa.net for more information. Carpooling can also be arranged from Albuquerque.

Glenwood

Saturday, May 20

Meet Christopher Rustay at the Glenwood Fish Hatchery at 7 a.m. To get there, turn onto Hwy 174 or Cat Walk Road from Hwy 180 in Glenwood and travel east for about 0.2 mile. We will bird there and then head to the Catwalk, where a Forest Service access fee or pass may be required.

The Catwalk is a fascinating piece of history with a metal walkway that hovers above Whitewater Creek in a narrow slot canyon. It recreates the experience that early miners had when inspecting a pipeline leading from mines in the mountains to processing plants further downstream.

The trail is an easy walk as will be the birding. We will end around 11 a.m. to noon. In the afternoon, depending on people's interests, we could hit spots along the San Francisco River, the town of Mogollon, Pueblo Park, Apache Creek Campground and/or Quemado Lake.

I would like to limit the trip to the Catwalk to four cars. But others could meet us at the Hatchery and then drive solo to the Catwalk.

For more info, including lodging in Glenwood, and to arrange for car pools from Albuquerque contact Christopher at chrustay@aol.com.

Documenting Climate Change

In January, 27 individuals conducted bluebird surveys on 16 routes along the Rio Grande, in the Sandia foothills, in the East Mountains and almost to Tajiique in the Manzano Mountains. Each survey consisted of twelve five-minute point counts. This is the third survey CNMAS members have participated in, along with teams from chapters across the country, to document species at risk due to climate change.
